Some Curious Changes in Names.

Rotten Row, as every Londoner knows, s a corruption of Route du Roi. The Bag Nails, a well known inn in that same city, was in classic day the Bacchanals. In the West Indies there have been some strange alterations in names. The Bog Walk in Jamaica, one of the prettiest river chasms in the world, was called by the Spaniards Bocca d'Agua. The present

Wag Water, in the same island, a stream that fertilizes some of the best sugar and tobacco grounds in the world, was known to the Spaniards as the Agua Alta. Turneffe, a large island and swampy paradise of the mosquito, lying off the coast of British Handurss, is a corruption of Terra Nuova, while Belize, the capital of the colony, is derived from Ballice, a small settlement first founded by the celebrated buccanser Wallace, who subsequently be-came governor of Jamaica. Montreal, in Canada, is a corruption of Mount Reyal in Africa the most common name for riv-ers is "Don't know." The explorer asked some native the name, and in the dialect of his tribe the man at last said: "Don't ables, Q. C., lately deceased. Unless I am mistaken this was told me by the per-son who introduced me to Thackeray. On at least one occasion I aliuded to the fact, and Venables certainly did not deny it. My informant saced that the 'Dame,' as My informant sdGed that the 'Dame,' as we called them at Elon, ran up and said to Vensbles: 'You have spoilt the best looking boy in the school.' "Aperbaps more veracious anecdote is contributed by "F. J. P.," who writes from Boston, U. S. A.: "When Thackero's was in America he dined one day with Mr. X. a distinguished literary man of this city, whose nose made a cool second to Thackero's and the second to the a good second to Thackeray's. The ladies had left the room and the two gentlemen were sitting over their wine, when X. proposed that they should join the ladies; upon which Thackeray sked: 'What do the ladies care for two broken nosed old fellows like us.'" It is said that X had no regard for Thackeray thereafter.— St. James' Gazette.

What Betrayed Him.

They were trying hard not to look like a bride and groom, but an incident happened that gave them clean away. They stepped out of the Ebbitt House for a walk. The young man looked at the threatening sky and then, with the solicitude peculiar to young husbands, concluded that he had better raise his umbrella, and then his be-loved would be protected when the rain did come. So he unfastened the bund of his natty umbrella, gave it a little flirt and then raised it. About a pint of rice show-ered down on his bead and scattered over the pavement. The spectators roamd, the bride giggled narvously and the young man beat a hasty retreat into the hotel to get the rice out of his hair.—Washington

A Charming Time.

"You've been on a visit to your sister, I bear, Mrs. Doeley." "Yes, I've been to see her for the first time in seven years. "Have a nice time?"

"Oh, dear, yes; I had a delightful time. She had a new dress to make, the baby cut four teeth, and one of the neighbors had a brass band funeral white I was there. Everything was charming."—Ram's Horn.

Equal to Any Sacrifice. "Harold," said the sweet girl, "shall I read to you my graduating essay for to-"Yes, darling," replied the young man, pale but calm. "If—if, anything should happen to me," he added, in a hoarse, husky whisper, "remember, Maud, my last thoughts were of you!"—Chicago

RUN AS AN ADJUNCT.

He Tried It and It Worked the Wrong Way. There came a chap one day to set up drug store in our mining town, which had taken a boom and was attracting business. This wasn't to be a "regular" drug store, but the drug part was an annex to a grocery and boot and shoe store. The new ar-rival had just opened out when Tom Harrison, one of the men in my claim, was taken one night with billious colle. Ben Wheeler, another of our men, went to the druggist's to get a remedy, but that individual at once said to him:

His First Visit, Don't You Know A Chicago lawyer, who recently returned from a voyage across the Atlantic, tells "One of the voyagers back was a young man from one of the universities of Eng-land. He was the most thoroughly book posted young man I ever saw. knew his own country as well. He was a delightful companion so long as he con-fined himself to his books and his country. But about everything else he was so remarkably verdant that he was as interesting in his talk about things he didn't know as he was in his conversations about those which he did know.

"As we neared New York harbor there was the usual anxiety on the part of Amerwas the usual enxisty on the part of Americans on board, and the usual curiosity on the part of those who were coming over for the first time. I was walking on the dock one morning waiting to get a glimpse of my own country. The young Briton joined me, and in the most serious manner said.

"Who is this man I hear them talking about so much for the last few hours—this about so much for the last few hours-this Sandy Hook, I think they call him! He must be a great man in America, and yet from his name I should say he was a Scotchman."—Chicago Tribune.
